

	YES	NO
Were you satisfied that the person could understand the nature of the decision?
Were you satisfied the person understood why the decision needed to be made at that time?
Were you satisfied that the person could understand the likely effects of deciding one way or another?
Were you satisfied that the person could retain the information about the decision long enough to use it to make the decision (even if this was only for a short time)?
Were you satisfied the person could use or weigh up this information (eg understand pros and cons) as part of the decision making process?
Could the person communicate their decision in any way (ie verbally, non-verbally or in their behaviour or actions)?		